in partnership with Leeds Beckett University, Leeds Business School, a Postgraduate Certificate in Coaching and Mentoring for Leadership in Organisations

Delivered by experts, the Postgraduate Certificate in Coaching and Mentoring for Leadership in Organisations is available as a totally virtual course and is validated at Postgraduate level by Leeds Beckett University, Leeds Business School in the UK.

Learning is delivered through a blended approach of online webinars, pertinent reading on up to date coaching and mentoring concepts and models, written research and assignments, and actual coaching and mentoring sessions, which will be assessed by the tutors with feedback.

Aims of the programme

The programme is designed to develop highly effective internal coaches and mentors who are competent to work within their organisations and can provide a trained coaching and mentoring resource internally.

The programme will include all the skills practice, competence preparation and knowledge necessary to achieve this.

Programme Benefits include:

- Each programme is run as a 'closed' course tailored to the culture of the organisation the PGC is being delivered within.
- With a totally virtual delivery, it can be delivered globally and in any time zone.
- The programme can build internal coaching and mentoring organisational competence at any level of the organisation.
- Participants can progress towards the Leeds Business School MA in Executive and Business Coaching, having accumulated 60 CATS points towards this.
- The programme will create a close-knit network of coaches and mentors who have journeyed together through the course and who can continue to draw on each other for support, peer supervision and learning.

Who is this for?

Leaders and line managers

Professionals

Dedicated internal coaches and mentors

We recommend that the PGC is taken over the course of a year, the start time can be agreed to fit in with your organisation's needs.

There are three modules taught over the year, with 76 hours of virtual teaching delivered in chunks of 2 hours.

Module descriptions

Module 1

The Fundamentals of Coaching and Mentoring (28 hours contact time)

This module provides participants with the knowledge and skills of coaching and mentoring and reflective practice so that they can perform effectively as a coach and mentor. Participants will be introduced to a variety of concepts, theories, models and techniques to help develop systematic understanding and critical awareness of coaching and mentoring within the context of practice.

The assessment for this module is a coursework assignment where participants critically review a range of coaching and mentoring concepts, theories and models that can be used to support coaching and mentoring interventions (6000 words).

Module 2

Coaching & Mentoring for Organisation Development (28 hours contact time)

This module provides participants with an understanding of differing roles and forms of specific coaching and mentoring intervention for the practitioner in the workplace and through critical reflection help participants gain a clearer understanding of challenges and dilemmas confronting coaches and mentors. The module will enable participants to develop a broader understanding and critical awareness of the role of the coach and mentor in the process of organisational development.

The assessment for this module is a coursework reflective assignment reviewing interventions concerning coaching and mentoring intervention projects in the context of organisational development, undertaken by the participant. (6000 words).

Module 3

Coaching & Mentoring Reflective Practice (20 hours contact time)

The module provides participants with an opportunity to develop knowledge for and from reflexive practice in the context of their coaching and mentoring practice. They will also reflect on how coaching and mentoring can be applied to personal, professional and organisational growth and consider their application in the development of individual and collective development strategy.

The module requires the submission of a Critical Reflective Practice Assignment (6000 words).

We believe that cohorts of 8 to 10 participants work best through our blended format of virtual teaching.
